

Bringing neuroscience and data science together

CodeNeuro is about understanding the brain, and the computing technology we need to get there.

We're a collective of neuroscientists, data scientists, hackers, and visualizers working together to tackle one of the most fascinating problems in biology — and change the way we think about data and computing in the process.

We do this through meetups, hackathons, competitions, and sharing data and code.

≡ See the latest...

DATASETS

COMPETITION

EVENT

Coordinators include Jeremy Freeman, Michael Broxton, Nicholas Sofroniew, Logan Grose, Eric Trautman, Matt Conlen, Deep Ganguli, Jeff Hammerbacher, and many others

